

Encore 2010!

A WORKSHOP PRESENTED BY
SCBWI-NE & ASTAL

When: Saturday, October 30, 2010, 9:00am – 4:30pm
Where: Rhode Island College
600 Mount Pleasant Avenue, Providence, RI

Back by popular demand – encore performances from SCBWI-NE Conferences

Act 1 Writing Within and Without Genre

J. L. Bell – Book editor, historian, and author of nonfiction and fiction for kids

What does it mean to write within a “genre”? Author-editor J. L. Bell explores how writers can work with reader expectations to tell stories that both surprise and satisfy.

Act 2 It's a Great Time for Nonfiction

Melissa Stewart – Editor, educator, and author of more than 100 science books for children

Learn how to experiment with structure, voice, and word choice to craft nonfiction texts that are creative, innovative, unique, and irresistible.

Act 3 Maximum Potential: How to Make Your Manuscript into the Book It Wants to Be

Lisa Papademetriou – Author of numerous books for young readers, from picture books to literary novels for young adults

For all those who are sick of waiting for inspiration when you reach an unplanned stopping place, Lisa Papademetriou gives tips and techniques to deal with your weaknesses and use your strengths to reach your maximum potential.

Act 4 Brave New Words: Using Writing Prompts to Tap Unexplored Resources

Jo Knowles – Teacher and author of several books for YA readers

This will be a hands-on workshop focused on using memory and observation to find inspiration and write up a flurry of brave new words.

Act 5 Matchmaking 101: Choosing the Right Publisher

Yolanda (Leroy) Scott – Editorial Director at Charlesbridge Publishing

Charlesbridge Editorial Director Yolanda Scott discusses the opportunities and challenges of publishing with different-sized houses, as well as how to increase the odds of placing the right manuscript with the right editor at the right house at the right time.
